ALL WORKERS UNITED

Aotearoa New Zealand should be a great place to live.

We are a proudly diverse nation that over a million migrants call home, and we thrive when we work together.

But during the last three years of the National-ACT-NZ First Government, racism and xenophobia have exploded. Politicians like Winston Peters and David Seymour have tried to divide us with words and policies that promote hatred and diminish the importance of our founding document: Te Tiriti o Waitangi.

We, the workers of Aotearoa, are under attack. We experience the results of these political games every day in our workplaces: in our stores, on our public transport system, in our schools and public spaces. Māori, Pasifika and migrant workers – we are all dealing with the same problems.

Enough is enough. We're standing up against hate and calling for Kiwis to back New Zealand workers by changing the Government and changing our politics for the better.

Aotearoa should be an example to the world of a diverse and multicultural society that respects indigenous rights and celebrates the differences that make us great. We must have zero tolerance for hate.

We are All Workers United against racism and xenophobia.
